

Becoming vice president of a major bank.

Changing careers to pursue her dream of being a chef.

Graduating from culinary school...seven months after spine surgery.

A MOMENT CHANGES EVERYTHING

Just nine credits away from graduating, Georgette Thomas was diagnosed with spinal stenosis—a condition that put her spine at risk of snapping. At Ocean Medical Center...part of Meridian Neuroscience, Georgette found an amazing neurosurgeon who recognized the severity of her case and performed spinal fusion surgery three days later. Within weeks, Georgette was back at culinary school. Seven months later, she graduated and was ready to cook up a bright new future.
