FOCUS on Teaching

Vol. 3, Issue 2
Academic Year 2008-2009

Message from TLC Director Norah Kerr-McCurry

Collaboration, innovation, and teaching excellence are some of the goals of the Teaching and Learning Center. But for this academic year, another goal we have achieved, and then some, is growth. The TLC will continue to support faculty and students; we have found though that supporting fully 20% of the College's enrollment in ANGEL is quite a challenge!

We remain committed to providing workshops for faculty, administering the ANGEL Learning Management system, working with faculty to build interactive learning objects and courses, and supporting students as we continue to Focus on Teaching.

Lead Faculty Fellow Mike Quissaunce will lead workshop sessions on Podcasting and Blogs. Mike is also available to work with faculty on an individual basis. Call the TLC at 2089.

Professor Paul Keating will lead our TLC Roundtable discussions with Norah Kerr-McCurry. Topic for January 28th: Best Practices in Online Teaching & Learning. Join us for a great discussion over lunch.

Distance Education Course Enrollments

Fall 2008 Web Enhanced Course Statistics

Faculty have embraced use of the ANGEL Learning Management system for presentation of fully online, hybrid, and web-enhanced courses. With over 1,500 online and 7,000 web-enhanced enrollments per term, faculty are utilizing the system as a repository for information and tool for communication. TLC staff and the lead Faculty Fellow are available to work with full and part-time faculty to build learning objects to enhance the teaching and learning process.

Brookdale Innovation Grant (BIG) recipients will present final projects on Wednesday, March 11th at 12:00 Noon. Sponsored by the Office of Grants and Institutional Development, this is a great opportunity for faculty to see what colleagues have accomplished with the support of this initiative.
